5 6 7	WHEREAS,	many ACR Practice Guidelines have been updated in the last several years to include pediatric language, and
8 9	WHEREAS,	the use of the terms "adult" and "pediatric" in the titles of practice guidelines has not been formalized and may be used inconsistently, and
10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17	WHEREAS,	to achieve consistency, the Commission on Quality and Safety proposes that practice guidelines, which are applicable to both pediatric and adult patients, do not specify "pediatric and adult" in the title. Further, practice guidelines, which are applicable to a limited population or specific patient type, continue to include language in the title indicating to which patients the practice guideline applies, and
18 19 20	WHEREAS,	there are 11 practice guidelines that require amending in order to adopt the recommendation of the Commission on Quality and Safety; therefore,
